Dear CIPL Members,

With many of our members heads down with the preparation for the GDPR implementation date, we at CIPL have been continuing to inform and build bridges between different stakeholders, to help develop consistent and forward thinking interpretations of the new obligations and to promote accountability and best practices in implementing the new requirements. As part of our GDPR Implementation Project, CIPL has submitted several consultation papers to the Article 29 Working Party (WP29) on: Binding Corporate Rules Working Documents, its Transparency Guidelines, Consent Guidelines and Guidelines on the Accreditation of Certification Bodies. CIPL has also submitted our white paper on GDPR Implementation in Respect of Children's Data and Consent to the WP29 and UK ICO, and released a Factsheet on the key issues relating to the relationship between the proposed ePrivacy Regulation and the GDPR. We've also released our 2nd GDPR Readiness Survey Report in collaboration with AvePoint. In January, CIPL held an extensive workshop in Dublin with the Irish Data Protection Commissioner on delivering accountability under the GDPR. Beyond our work on GDPR, CIPL has launched a new project on Accountable AI to provide a more nuanced and detailed understanding of the opportunities presented by AI, potential misalignment with data protection laws, and practical and operational controls to address these issues through the lens of organisational accountability. AI will also be the focus of CIPL's 2018 Annual Executive Retreat, which is being held from 25-27 June in San Francisco in the margins of the 49th Asia-Pacific Privacy Authorities (APPA) Forum. Please, save these dates. Finally, our CIPL team is growing to be able to support your growing needs and demand for our work – and that is a great thing! We have hired Nathalie Laneret, former Group DPO CapGemini, as Director of Global Privacy Policy. She has just started on 7 May, and will be based in Brussels and Paris. I am confident she will further enhance CIPL's impact in Europe and beyond. I encourage you to read the details of CIPL's ongoing work below, and I look forward to seeing many of you at our Retreat this summer.

I. CIPL/Irish Data Protection Commission Workshop in Dublin, Ireland

On 23 January, CIPL held a workshop in association with the Irish Data Protection Commission addressing "How Organisations Can Deliver Accountability under the GDPR". This workshop covered how to implement the essential elements of accountability throughout organisations of all sizes, effective approaches in risk management, including how to conduct data protection impact assessments and the legitimate interest balancing test, how to provide effective transparency to individuals, manage individual rights and respond to complaints, as well as how to prepare for and manage security breaches. The workshop also highlighted and demonstrated accountability in practice through interactive discussions and presentations from the Irish Data Protection Commission and companies with leading data privacy programs and practices. Over 400 participants from CIPL member companies, the Irish Data Protection Commission and other invited industry guests participated in the workshop.

For more details on the delegation visit, please see the workshop agenda and slide deck.

Panelists provide practical examples of how to implement key individual rights under the GDPR.

Aaron Simpson, Partner, Hunton Andrews Kurth leads participants through a tabletop data breach exercise.

II. CIPL Roundtable on Children's Data under the GDPR in London, UK

On 12 February, CIPL hosted a roundtable discussion with the UK ICO and the Irish Data Protection Commission on Children's Data under the GDPR. This was an informal discussion, during which participants addressed the key challenges associated with implementing the GDPR's requirements pertaining to children, including the issues of obtaining parental consent on behalf of children, verification of parental responsibility, and related issues. Specific topics included GDPR Article 8 (conditions applicable to a child's consent), the WP29's recent consent guidelines addressing Article 8, and the UK ICO consultation paper on children and the GDPR. The issues explored during this Roundtable informed CIPL's white paper on "GDPR Implementation in Respect of Children's Data and Consent".

Rosemary Jay, Senior Consultant Attorney, Hunton Andrews Kurth speaks to children's rights under data protection law.

For more details on the Roundtable, please see the roundtable agenda.

III. APEC Electronic Commerce Steering Group and Data Privacy Subgroup Meetings in Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea

On 26 February – 1 March, Markus Heyder participated in the meetings of the APEC Electronic Commerce Steering Group (ECSG) and its Data Privacy Subgroup (DPS) in Port Moresby, Papua New Guinea to discuss issues relating to the ongoing implementation of the APEC Cross-Border Privacy Rules (CBPR) and Privacy Recognition for Processors (PRP) systems, as well as their interoperability with the GDPR. He also participated in a meeting on the ongoing collaboration between the DPS and the European Union concerning interoperability between APEC and EU-based transfer mechanisms, where he spoke, among other issues, on the status of GDPR implementation in the EU.

IV. US Federal Trade Commission/US-India Business Council Workshop on “Privacy and Growth in a Global Economy” in New Delhi, India

On 7 March, CIPL President Bojana Bellamy participated in the US-India Business Council’s day-long workshop entitled “Privacy and Growth in a Global Economy” with the US Federal Trade Commission to discuss the American privacy regime, emerging trends, and international best practices. The workshop included US and Indian government policy makers and experts from industry, academia, and civil society. This event was open to the public, and participants explored how the global privacy community can offer insights and experience to India as the nation develops its own privacy framework. During the workshop, Bojana Bellamy spoke on “Consumers, the Cloud & Cross-Border Data Transfers”.

Panelists speak on adapting privacy to new technologies, automated decision-making and cloud computing.

V. CIPL Brazil Delegation Visit in Washington, DC

Bojana Bellamy speaks on the role of a central data protection authority and strategies for effective regulation

On March 14, CIPL hosted in its Washington, DC office a delegation from Brazil participating in the US Department of State’s International Visitor Leadership Program. During the meeting, CIPL principals, member companies and the Brazilian delegation comprising representatives from government, industry and academia discussed the importance of a central data protection authority as well as strategies for effective data protection regulation based on CIPL’s white paper “Regulating for Results – Strategies and Priorities for Leadership and Engagement”. The Brazilian delegation members also provided an update on the status and next steps in the development of a Brazilian data protection law.

VI. CIPL/Hunton Andrews Kurth Reception in the margins of the 2018 IAPP Global Privacy Summit in Washington, DC

CIPL and Hunton Andrews Kurth’s Global Privacy and Cybersecurity team held a joint Reception during the IAPP Global Privacy Summit on March 27th, 2018. CIPL was honored to have Andrea Jelinek, the newly elected Chair of the Article 29 Working Party (WP29) provide opening remarks, along with Lisa Sotto, Partner, Hunton Andrews Kurth, Giovanni Buttarelli, the European Data Protection Supervisor and Isabelle Falque-Pierrotin, President of the CNIL and former WP29 Chair. Special guests at the reception also included over fifteen data protection authorities from Austria, Canada, the EDPS, France, Hong Kong, Hungary, Israel, Ireland, Singapore, and the United States.

Giovanni Buttarelli, EDPS speaks to the necessity of a modern approach to digital ethics.

Isabelle Falque-Pierrotin, Head of CNIL, calls for reflection on the value added of the International Conference.

VII. CIPL Launch Meeting for Artificial Intelligence Working Group in Washington, DC

On 28 March, CIPL held its first dedicated Working Session on Artificial Intelligence and Accountable Machine Learning organised as part of CIPL's newest project on "Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection: Delivering Sustainable AI Accountability in Practice".

Fred Cate, Senior Policy Advisor, CIPL delineates CIPL's vision for the Artificial Intelligence Project.

This Working Session brought together CIPL leadership, CIPL members and CIPL Senior Policy Advisor Fred Cate, who is leading the project, to discuss the scope and nature of the project and key data protection issues as they relate to the use of AI in the modern information age. This session also provided members with an opportunity to contribute initial input into CIPL's draft AI project white paper.

Discussion topics included opportunities and challenges presented by AI in the modern digital economy, the potential misalignment of certain AI practices with data protection laws, and practical ways to address these issues through the lens of organisational accountability.

For more details on the Working Session, please see the Working Session agenda.

Message from the President

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

With the implementation of the GDPR, we have entered a new data protection regime, and we at CIPL have been continuing to inform and build bridges between different stakeholders, to help develop consistent and forward thinking interpretations of the new obligations and to promote accountability and best practices in implementing the new requirements. To assist with GDPR implementation efforts, CIPL continues to engage with public and private sector stakeholders, and to that end we have submitted a response to the UK ICO's GDPR DPIA Guidance, and held a special GDPR session with the New York Privacy Officers Forum in New York City. Outside of the GDPR, we have also released a study on the proposed ePrivacy Regulation prepared by Normally, a UK design studio, and delved further into our new project on Accountable Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection. CIPL firmly believes that AI is the next frontier for global privacy discussions, and we've been hard at work to provide a more nuanced and detailed understanding of the opportunities presented by AI, potential misalignment with data protection laws and practical ways to address these issues through the lens of organisational accountability.

Lastly, I'd like to extend a special welcome to Ramy Houssaini, Chief Cyber and Technology Risk Officer and Group DPO at BNP Paribas, who has joined CIPL membership at the advisory level. As an advisory level member, Ramy and his team will help advise CIPL across all our global initiatives and work streams.

I encourage you to read the details of CIPL's ongoing work below, and I look forward to seeing many of you in the coming months.

I. CIPL/New York Privacy Officers Forum Special Session on "GDPR Implementation: Looking Beyond May 25th" in New York City

On 31 May, less than one week after the GDPR implementation deadline, CIPL held a special working session alongside the New York Privacy Officers Forum (NYPOF) in New York City to discuss GDPR compliance. CIPL President Bojana Bellamy lead the discussion. During the session, over 60 participants discussed key areas of focus for compliance with the GDPR, how to navigate accountability and risk assessment, what to expect from regulators, and sustainable compliance post-May 2018.

II. CIPL Roundtable on “Accountable AI: Solutions for Data Privacy and Innovation in Europe” in Brussels

On 7 June 2018, CIPL held a special, invitation-only Roundtable on accountable AI at the Brussels Tech Summit. This two-hour Roundtable brought together leaders and experts from companies, data protection authorities and the EU Commission to discuss “Accountable AI: Solutions for Data Privacy and Innovation in Europe”. Over three dozen public and private sector representatives discussed AI’s current and future role in society, the challenges and data protection risks of AI that may raise issues of public trust, ethics and legal compliance with the GDPR, and the elements of accountable AI.

III. CIPL Special Executive Retreat with APPA Privacy Commissioners on Accountable AI in San Francisco

During the week of 25 June 2018, CIPL hosted its annual executive retreat in San Francisco, California. The annual event consisted of a closed pre-retreat session for CIPL members, a CIPL Panel at the APPA Forum Open session followed by a CIPL reception and dinner and a special all day workshop with data protection commissioner members of the Asia Pacific Privacy Authorities (“APPA”) on Accountable AI.

On 25 June 2018, CIPL hosted a closed pre-retreat session for members on global privacy developments at Hunton Andrews Kurth’s San Francisco office. The session consisted of a discussion of current EU General Data Protection Regulation (“GDPR”) implementation, compliance and enforcement issues, the impact of the GDPR on global organisational privacy management programs and the interrelation between the GDPR and ePrivacy. This was followed by a discussion of emerging new privacy laws in Latin America and India, the growth of the APEC Cross-Border Privacy Rules (“CBPR”) and Privacy Recognition for Processors (“PRP”) systems, and developments in EU adequacy negotiations.

On 26 June 2018, CIPL held a panel on Accountable and Interoperable Cross-border Data Flows as part of the 49th APPA Forum Open Session. The panel discussed the many requirements organisations have to contend with when transferring data across borders, the latest updates to the APEC CBPR system and the recently introduced US Clarifying Lawful

On 27 June 2018, CIPL hosted a full day workshop on accountable AI at Google's offices in San Francisco. Data protection commissioner members of APPA attended and participated in the day-long event. The workshop marked the third major event to date in CIPL's Project on "Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection: Delivering Sustainable AI Accountability in Practice." The workshop included several keynote addresses on AI from leading technologists and data scientists, followed by three panel sessions on current uses of AI in the public and private sectors, the key data protection challenges and risks associated with AI and the elements of accountable AI. Over 100 invited guests attended the session, including CIPL members, data privacy regulators from around the globe, business and technology leaders and academics.

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

With 2019 already fast approaching, we at CIPL are continuing to work hard on developing solutions to pressing data protection issues. As part of our commitment to bring both DPAs and companies into consensus on the elements and role of organisational accountability, CIPL has released two papers this summer on this topic, and held a joint workshop on “Implementing Accountability” with the Personal Data Protection Commission (PDPC) in Singapore.

Going forward, CIPL will continue to emphasise the importance of organisational accountability for effective data protection through additional workshops, white papers and engagement with industry and regulators.

I. CIPL/Singapore Personal Data Protection Commission Joint Workshop on “Implementing Accountability” in Singapore

On 26 July 2018, CIPL held a joint workshop with the Singapore Personal Data Protection Commission (PDPC) on “Implementing Accountability” in the margins of the PDPC’s 6th Personal Data Protection Seminar. The full day workshop was designed to demonstrate accountability in practice through interactive discussions, practical demonstrations and presentations from experienced data protection practitioners from companies with mature data protection management programmes.

The workshop started with a discussion of key elements of organisational accountability, the role of the data protection officer and best practices for documenting and demonstrating accountability.

Industry leaders with mature data protection management programmes share practical demonstrations and examples of delivering accountability

This was followed by an examination of practical implementation issues relating to transparency, notification requirements and different legal bases for processing, including the Notification of Purpose and Legitimate Interest bases for processing, as proposed by the Singapore PDPC. A hands-on demonstration of privacy by design and data protection impact assessment case studies and tabletop exercises on transparency followed. The workshop concluded with regulators providing their perspectives and expectations regarding accountability. Over 130 representatives from Asian data protection authorities, industry and academia participated in the workshop.

For more details on the workshop, please see the workshop agenda and slide deck.

II. CIPL Roundtable on “The ePrivacy Regulation: From Impact on the User Experience to Interaction with the GDPR” in Brussels, Belgium

On 11 September 2018, CIPL held a special, invitation-only roundtable on “The ePrivacy Regulation: From Impact on the User Experience to Interaction with the GDPR”. The roundtable brought together experts negotiating the proposed ePrivacy regulation in the Council and top level representatives from industry as well as academia. Building on CIPL’s previous work on the ePrivacy Regulation, including two recent studies prepared by independent experts, the roundtable explored the consequences of the proposed ePrivacy Regulation, including how it will impact the user experience of digital services, individuals generally and organisations from all sectors. Specifically, participants discussed how the proposed ePrivacy Regulation requirements of consent, transparency and choice will affect the user experience and also how the ePrivacy Regulation will complement, overlap or contradict the GDPR.

III. Internet Governance Committee and Information and Coordination Center of Ponto BR’s 9th Seminar on Protection of Privacy and Personal Data in São Paulo, Brazil

On 7 August 2018, Bojana Bellamy participated in the Brazil Internet Governance Committee (CGI) and Information and Coordination Center of Ponto BR’s (NIC) 9th Seminar on the Protection of Privacy and Personal Data, which brought together experts from the government, scientific and technological communities. The Seminar was organised in partnership with the Federal Public Prosecutor of São Paulo (MPF/SP), the Center for Teaching in Research and Innovation of the Getúlio Vargas Foundation (FGV) and the Internet Society (ISOC). On 7 August, the first day of the Seminar, Bojana Bellamy spoke on two panels. The first panel was on “GDPR and Convention 108:

The Modernisation Process of Personal Data Protection Norms” alongside the University of Rio de Janeiro’s Danilo Doneda, Facebook’s Laura Juanes, and the Council of Europe’s Sophie Kwasny. Bojana Bellamy also spoke on “Regulatory Models for the Application and Supervision of Data Protection Laws”.

For more details on the Seminar, please see the summary on CGI’s website.

IV. Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation’s (APEC) 7th eCommerce Business Alliance (ECBA) Forum in Xi’an, China

On 19-20 September 2018, Markus Heyder attended the 7th eCommerce Business Alliance Forum, which was hosted by APEC and the Ministry of Commerce of China in Xi’an, Shaanxi Province, China. The theme of the forum was “Inclusive Trade in the Era of Digital Economy”. During the forum, Markus Heyder spoke about approaches to data protection regulation and constructive engagement between data protection regulators. Markus Heyder also participated in the meeting of the 3rd Expert Committee of the APEC eCommerce Business Alliance and was inaugurated as Deputy Chair of this group for a term of four years.

Dear CIPL Members,

It’s an exciting time in the world of data privacy! CIPL is continuing to work hard to develop global solutions for privacy and the responsible use of data. One of our primary focus areas continues to be the effective implementation of the GDPR through workshops, papers and public consultations and in many other ways. In addition, as part of CIPL’s commitment to develop solutions for the challenges presented by emerging technologies, including AI, we’ve organised or participated in numerous events in Brussels, Singapore and New Zealand. We also released our First AI Report on Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection in Tension last October.

Last but not least, we are also increasing our engagement in the US on developing a new US privacy framework. Among other things, we’ve responded to the US NTIA’s Request for Comment on “Developing the Administration’s Approach to Consumer Privacy”, held a roundtable for CIPL members to discuss what we would like to see in a new US privacy framework, and participated in the FTC hearings on Competition and Consumer Protection in the 21st Century.

I encourage you to read the details of CIPL’s ongoing work below, and I look forward to seeing many of you at our Retreat this spring.

I. CIPL/AXA Workshop on “Accountability under the GDPR: How to Implement, Demonstrate and Incentivise it” in Paris, France

On 5 October 2018, CIPL held a special workshop co-hosted by AXA on “Accountability under the GDPR: How to Implement, Demonstrate and Incentivise it”. Building on CIPL’s previous work on accountability and the key WP29 Opinion on the topic from 2010, the full day interactive workshop explored accountability under the GDPR. Specifically, participants discussed accountability’s benefits for organisations, individuals and regulators as well as its essential elements, particularly in relation to the requirements of the GDPR. The workshop also highlighted practical implementation experiences of organisations and expectations of regulators.

Former European Data Protection Supervisor Peter Hustinx provides scene setting remarks on accountability

Participants also discussed how to demonstrate accountability, both internally and externally through comprehensive privacy management programs and through certified accountability schemes such as binding corporate rules and the potential for GDPR certifications and Codes of Conduct as further mechanisms to achieve accountability.

Finally, the workshop concluded with a focused discussion on the different types of incentives for accountability, including those already codified in the GDPR, and the important role of regulators in incentivising accountability above and beyond what is required by law, including through innovative regulatory methods and the facilitation of innovative uses of data for accountable organisations.

For more details on the workshop, please see the workshop agenda and slide deck.

II. CIPL/EFPIA/FPF Workshop on “Can the GDPR Work for Health Research?” in Brussels, Belgium

On 22 October 2018, CIPL co-hosted a workshop in Brussels addressing the question: “Can the GDPR Work for Health Scientific Research?” with the European Federation of Pharmaceutical Industries and Associations (“EFPIA”) and the Future of Privacy Forum (“FPF”) to address the challenges raised by the GDPR in conducting scientific health research. Over 100 EFPIA members, policymakers, regulators and representatives from companies participated in the full day workshop.

Cecilia Álvarez, European Data Protection Officer Lead at Pfizer, and Brendan Barnes, Director of Data Protection at EFPIA set the scene for the day’s discussions by emphasising the importance of health research in advancing science, patient welfare and public good, as well as opportunities for digital health activities in Europe. Challenges to such advancement, including the consistent application of the GDPR in the medical research sector, were also highlighted.

Two extensive sessions followed these opening remarks. The first session focused on clinical trials and featured several presentations by industry experts and a panel discussion, moderated by CIPL President Bojana Bellamy. The panel discussed, in particular, the complex regulatory framework surrounding clinical trials, the interaction between the GDPR and the Clinical Trial Regulation (“CTR”), the role of consent under both regulations and operational challenges. The second session addressed the secondary use of data which is indispensable and of significant value for scientific research.

For more details on the Seminar, please see the summary on Hunton Andrews Kurth’s Privacy Blog and to read the key findings from the discussion, please see the Workshop Report.

III. CIPL Industry-only Roundtable on Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection in Brussels, Belgium

On 23 October 2018, CIPL held a closed, CIPL-members only roundtable on Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection in the margins of the 40th International Conference of Data Protection & Privacy Commissioners (ICDPPC). During the roundtable, CIPL members held an open discussion on data protection challenges associated with AI and machine learning applications. Participants discussed the issues addressed in CIPL’s recent white paper entitled “Delivering Sustainable AI Accountability in Practice: Artificial Intelligence and Data Protection in Tension”, focusing on how certain data protection principles may be in tension with the effective deployment of AI tools.

Participants discuss how to minimise tension between data protection principles and applications of AI

Participants also discussed the next steps in CIPL's AI project, focusing on how the elements of organisational accountability can be applied to the AI context to ensure responsible and sustainable AI use.

IV. CIPL Side Event on “The Concept of Fairness in Data Protection” at the 40th International Conference of Data Protection & Privacy Commissioners (ICDPPC) in Brussels, Belgium

On 23 October 2018, CIPL also held two iterations of a side event at the 40th ICDPPC on “The Concept of Fairness in Data Protection”. The panel consisted of representatives from leading data protection authorities, industry representatives, technologists and academics, who each addressed questions surrounding the meaning of “fairness” in the data protection context. Specific questions participants addressed included “how should organisations make determinations about the fairness of their processing activities in a way that regulators will accept; what are the measurable elements and proof points of fairness; and are these elements/proof points sufficiently universal and objective so that efforts to minimise legal uncertainty”.

For more details on the Side Event, please see the event agenda.

V. CIPL Roundtable on the US Privacy Framework in Washington, DC

On 5 November 2018, CIPL held a CIPL-members only roundtable to discuss updating the US privacy framework. During the roundtable, CIPL members discussed objectives for a US privacy framework, expectations for consumers, businesses and regulators, and suggestions for next steps. The discussion was guided by CIPL's response to the US NTIA's Request for Comment on “Developing the Administration's Approach to Consumer Privacy”.

CIPL's VP & Senior Policy Counselor Markus Heyder speaks on CIPL's Response to the NTIA's RFC on "Developing the Administration's Approach to Consumer Privacy" to kick off CIPL's Roundtable on "Updating the US Privacy Framework"

VI. CIPL Workshops with the Singapore Personal Data Protection Commission (PDPC) on “Roles of Certifications in Data Protection” and “Accountable and Responsible AI”

On 15 November 2018, CIPL and the Singapore PDPC held a joint, half-day workshop on Roles of Certifications in Personal Data Protection to discuss how data protection certifications and similar schemes can function as accountability and compliance tools for organisations and how certifications can function as a mechanism for global interoperability. In particular, the issue of interoperability between APEC CBPR and PRP, EU BCR and EU GDPR certifications was considered.

In addition, on 16 November 2018, CIPL and the Singapore PDPC held a joint, full-day working session to discuss the tensions between AI and certain data protection principles, as well as approaches and best practice solutions to accountable AI and machine learning. In the first session, leading technologists and data scientists shared current applications of AI and machine learning and demonstrated the need for robust and inclusive datasets. In the second session, representatives from multinational organisations and SMEs provided examples of best practices for responsible use and deployment of AI and machine learning applications, as well as areas where further thinking and solutions are needed.

For more details on the certifications workshop, please see the workshop agenda and slide deck. For more details on the AI working session, please see the working session agenda and slide deck.

VII. 50th Asia-Pacific Privacy Authorities Forum in Wellington, New Zealand

On 4 December 2018, CIPL Vice President Markus Heyder led a discussion on "Regulatory Approaches to Challenges of AI" at the 50th APPA Forum in New Zealand. The panel commenced with presentations from the Hong Kong Privacy Commissioner for Personal Data (PCPD) on its new AI ethics paper and the Singapore PDPC on its AI model framework. Following the presentations, industry representatives shared how they are currently ensuring accountable and responsible AI as well as their compliance efforts with existing privacy laws. The focus of the panel was not solely to describe the challenges of AI or on the tensions between AI and privacy laws, but more so to address solutions and ways forward.

VIII. New Zealand Privacy Commissioner's International Privacy Forum in Wellington, New Zealand

On 4 December 2018, Markus Heyder also moderated a panel on Asia-Pacific privacy developments at the New Zealand Privacy Commissioner's International Privacy Forum in Wellington with Rachel Dixon, Deputy Commissioner at the Office of the Victorian Information Commissioner (OVIC), Angelene Falk, Privacy Commissioner of the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC), Raymund Liboro, Privacy Commissioner of the Philippine National Privacy Commission and Kosuke Kizawa, Deputy Director of Japan Personal Information Protection Commission (PPC). During the panel, specific topics of discussion included end-to-end encryption breaking, data breach notification schemes, and adequacy with the EU.
