Message from the President

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

It was wonderful seeing so many of you last month in Washington, DC at CIPL's joint Reception with Hunton Andrews Kurth and in the margins of the IAPP Global Privacy Summit. I always enjoy opportunities to hear your input in shaping our work priorities as we continue to address complex issues in data privacy. With your support, we've been able to engage with key stakeholders on important data privacy developments such as the US privacy framework, the impact of Brexit on data protection in the UK and EU, the concept of regulatory sandboxes, Latin American privacy developments, difficult privacy issues in AI and other emerging technologies, and India's nascent privacy law.

We're also delighted to share that Hielke Hijmans, who has been CIPL's Senior Policy Advisor for nearly three years, has been appointed as Director of the Litigation Chamber at the Belgian Data Protection Authority. We're so proud to have a CIPL alumnus appointed to such a senior position, and the Belgian DPA is lucky to have a thoughtful expert of his caliber.

I. CIPL/UK Department for Digital, Culture, Media & Sport (DCMS) Roundtable on "Brexit Impact and Readiness" in London, UK

On January 25, 2019, CIPL held a joint roundtable with the UK Department for Digital, Culture, Media & Sport (DCMS) to discuss "Brexit Impact and Readiness". During the roundtable, the DCMS presented the results of their survey on Brexit readiness for businesses, and participants discussed the legal impact of Brexit on data protection, risks companies will face in a "no-deal" Brexit scenario and steps companies are taking to mitigate against any restrictions and the transfers of personal data between the UK and the European economic area.

For more details on the roundtable, please see the agenda and slide deck.

II. CIPL Roundtable on the "Regulatory Sandbox" Concept with the UK Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) in London, UK

On 19 February 2019, CIPL held a small, deep-dive roundtable with the UK Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) to discuss their plans and proposals for the regulatory sandbox and hear input from CIPL members, including willingness to participate in a regulatory sandbox pilot program. During the roundtable, participants discussed the scope, process, potential benefits and expectations for participation in the regulatory sandbox. The discussion was shaped primarily by the ICO's sandbox beta phase discussion paper and CIPL's response to the ICO's call for views on creating a "Regulatory Sandbox". Feedback from this roundtable contributed to finalizing CIPL's white paper on "Regulatory Sandboxes in Data Protection: Constructive Engagement and Innovative Regulation in Practice".

For more details on the roundtable, please see the roundtable agenda and slide deck.

III. CIPL Workshop on "Key Building Blocks for Effective Data Protection and Innovation in the Data Driven Society" during APEC's Privacy Meetings in Santiago, Chile

During the week of 25 February 2019, CIPL participated in the meetings of the APEC Data Privacy Subgroup (DPS) and Electronic Commerce Steering Group (ECSG) in Santiago, Chile. CIPL enjoys formal guest status and a seat at the table at these bi-annual APEC privacy meetings.

In connection with these meetings, CIPL was asked by the General Directorate of International Economic Relations of Chile's Ministry of Foreign Affairs to organize an official workshop for the APEC DPS and ECSG delegates from the participating APEC-based governments and data protection authorities, as well as for local Chilean government and industry stakeholders and other international industry and academic stakeholders. The purpose of this workshop was to support APEC's privacy and data protection work and provide a forum to exchange experiences and global perspectives on key issues relating to data protection in an era of rapid technological change.

CIPL's workshop was the first official APEC ECSG/DPS event in Santiago, kicking off a weeklong series of meetings by these groups on the further implementation of the APEC Cross-Border Privacy Rules (CBPR) and other privacy and data protection related issues of interest, including, the intersection between privacy laws and emerging technologies, potential updates to the APEC Privacy Framework, data portability, cross-border enforcement cooperation and privacy law and policy developments in the 21 APEC member-economies. A portion of the meetings also concerned possible future work on interoperability between the APEC CBPR and EU cross-border transfer mechanisms.

IV. CIPL Roundtable on “Difficult Data Protection Issues in AI” in London, UK

On 12 March 2019, CIPL held a small, informal roundtable on “Difficult Data Protection Issues in AI”, gathering experienced regulators, industry leaders and other experts to work substantively and collaboratively to identify solutions. During the roundtable, participants discussed difficult issues around fairness, transparency/explainability, use limitations, data minimization and automated decision-making to identify workable solutions and collect examples of hypothetical and currently implemented best practices.

This roundtable was the first of a series of AI and data protection roundtables to be sponsored by CIPL in Europe, North America, and Asia.

V. CIPL Breakfast Roundtable on India's Draft Data Protection Law in London, UK

On 14 March 2019, CIPL held a breakfast roundtable on India's draft data protection law in collaboration with Ms. Rama Vedashree, CEO of the Data Security Council of India. During this breakfast briefing, Rama Vedashree presented key elements of the draft law and its status in the legislative process. The presentation was followed by interactive discussions with Belson Devarajan (Legal Counsel for Data Privacy at Accenture) and Riccardo Masucci (Global Director of Privacy Policy at Intel). Participants discussed the potential impact of the future law on organizations, the main provisions of the law and the role and functioning of the forthcoming Indian data protection authority. The projected impact on international transfers and the free flow of data and India's potential for leadership on data protection domestically, throughout Asia and globally was also discussed.

For more details on the roundtable, please see the roundtable slide deck.

Message from the President

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

As summer scorches on, CIPL has been continuing our work to develop solutions for privacy and responsible data use. With your support in this past quarter, we have been able to engage with relevant stakeholders on the US privacy law development process, on modernizing the EU standard contractual clauses for international data transfers, advancing our work on responsible AI and implementing the APEC Cross-Border Privacy Rules system, among many other initiatives. Following Brazil's enactment of its first comprehensive data protection law, CIPL is launching a new project with the Brazilian Institute of Public Policy (IDP) on the implementation of this law, which will commence with our first workshop on this topic in Brasilia in September. For now, I wish you all a restful summer, and thank you for your continued support in helping to make all the items you see in this report a success.

I. CIPL 2019 Annual Executive Retreat on the Evolving US Privacy Landscape in Washington, DC

During the first week of April, CIPL held its annual two-day executive retreat in Washington, DC. The first day, April 2, 2019, consisted of a full-day working session on "Privacy Laws and Evolving Technologies and A New US Privacy Framework" at Hunton Andrews Kurth's Washington, DC office. Over 100 invited guests attended the working session, including CIPL members and US regulators and policy makers. Following opening remarks by CIPL President Bojana Bellamy, the Retreat commenced with a panel on privacy laws and evolving technologies, moderated by CIPL Senior Policy Advisor, Fred Cate. The second session shifted to a discussion about a new US privacy framework. Specifically, this session, entitled "Learning from the GDPR – does it contain elements that should be included in a US privacy law?" focused on the GDPR experience of companies over the past year. The final session, entitled "What should a US Privacy Law Look Like?", was split into two segments – a discussion with US government and regulatory representatives, moderated by CIPL Vice President and Senior Policy Counselor Markus Heyder, and an industry panel featuring a discussion by private sector representatives, moderated by CIPL Advisor Russell Schrader.

Participants discuss elements of a potential privacy law that may support or hamper the effective deployment of evolving technologies, e.g. AI, Blockchain and IoT

On the second day, April 3, 2019, CIPL hosted a closed post-retreat roundtable for our members on global privacy trends. The session commenced with a keynote on the “First Year of GDPR – Key Learnings and Priorities for Continued Implementation” by special guest Helen Dixon, Data Protection Commissioner of Ireland. Commissioner Dixon outlined key areas of activity for her office over the past year, provided insight into challenges for regulators under the GDPR regime and discussed enforcement activity and expectations for organizations. A Q&A session followed the keynote. After a short break, CIPL held a member-only closed session on upcoming global privacy trends and CIPL’s priorities for the coming year.

For more details, please see Hunton Andrews Kurth’s blog on CIPL’s retreat.

II. CIPL/Brazilian Institute of Public Policy (IDP) Roundtable on Brazil’s Data Protection Law in Brasilia

On April 8, 2019, CIPL held a joint roundtable with the Brazilian Institute of Public Policy (IDP) in Brasilia on Brazil’s recently approved data protection law.

Over 30 participants from Brazilian local companies, lawyers, ministries, universities, civil society and CIPL membership participated to discuss the status of Brazil’s data protection law across four sessions: 1) the importance of a central data protection authority, 2) regulatory challenges, 3) accountability and data governance and 4) challenges and next steps. This roundtable was organized in preparation for a special project CIPL is launching in collaboration with IDP on Brazilian on the effective implementation of Brazil’s new data protection law with a group of key stakeholders and experts from industry, government and academia.

For more details on the event, please see the roundtable agenda. For more details on CIPL and IDP’s Joint Brazil Project, please see the project work plan.

III. CIPL/OECD Joint Expert Accountability Roundtable in Paris

On 6 May 2019, CIPL held a joint expert roundtable with the OECD in Paris on organizational accountability. This roundtable was organized in conjunction with the 45th meeting of the Working Party on Security and Privacy in the Digital Economy (SPDE).

Participants discuss organizational accountability in practice during CIPL’s Joint Roundtable with the OECD in Paris

This roundtable sought to examine the ways in which accountability is being implemented and contributes to privacy and personal data protection through three thematic sessions. The first session focused on the state of play of organizational accountability, notably examples of its implementation in practice, its main elements, its benefits and drawbacks. The session also explored implications for accountability on transborder data flows. The second session focused on the impact of emerging technologies, such as AI, the Internet of Things and big data analytics, as well as current approaches to accountability, and the possible need to adapt them to take into account ethical and data governance considerations. The third and concluding roundtable highlighted the main takeaways from the previous sessions and discussed them in the context of the review of the OECD’s Privacy Guidelines. Participants agreed there is a need for a common understanding of accountability (the first theme), that enforcement and powerful regulators are integral to successful accountability (the second theme), and that international guidance on both aspects is necessary.

IV. CIPL/Hunton Andrews Kurth Seminar on EU Standard Contractual Clauses for International Data Transfers in Brussels

On 12 June 2019, CIPL held a joint roundtable with Hunton Andrews Kurth in Brussels regarding the update of the EU Standard Contractual Clauses for international data transfers (SCCs). More than 30 privacy leaders joined together to discuss the challenges of the current SCCs and provide their insights on the updated versions. Hunton Andrews Kurth Partner David Dumont led the discussion, while CIPL President Bojana Bellamy illuminated CIPL's work in this area. The session also featured Cristina Monti, Policy Officer in the International Data Flows and Protection Unit of the EU Commission DG Justice and Consumers.

EU Commission Policy Officer Cristina Monti shares updates on EU Standard Contractual Clauses for International Data Transfers in light of the GDPR

The seminar attracted a range of privacy professionals who responded to a brief interactive survey regarding their preferred data transfer mechanisms and their experiences with SCCs. EU Commission representatives also shared the Commission's work to update SCCs in light of the GDPR, and participants discussed the efficiency, workability and challenges of the current SCCs and expectations for the updated versions.

For more details, please see Hunton Andrews Kurth's blog on the seminar.

V. CIPL AI Roundtable with the European Commission on their High Level Expert Group's (HLEG) AI Ethics Guidelines in Brussels

On 27 June 2019, CIPL held a Roundtable with the EU Commission on the Commission's Ethics Guidelines for Trustworthy AI. Over two dozen representatives from CIPL membership, the EU Commission and its High Level Expert Group participated to discuss the principles, requirements and assessment list of the Commission's guidelines. More specifically, the EU Commission had the opportunity to hear industry feedback on the assessment list's usefulness, relevance, ability to be implemented, and interoperability with other frameworks, as well as possibilities for improvement.

Message from the President

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

With 2020 already fast approaching, we at CIPL are continuing to work hard on developing solutions to pressing data protection issues, and our CIPL team is growing in order to better support your needs. This past September, we have hired two new privacy managers: Matthew Starr, who joins CIPL as Global Privacy and Public Policy Manager, and Giovanna Carloni, who joins as Global Privacy Policy Manager. We have also recently added former Virginia Governor Terry McAuliffe as a Global Strategy Advisor, and he will primarily help shape CIPL's strategic initiatives in US privacy and drive visibility for our work.

As part of our work on US privacy, CIPL held a roundtable on organizational accountability with US Senate staff members, and released both a Q&A paper on organizational accountability in data protection, along with a white paper on organizational accountability's existence in US regulatory compliance and its relevance for a US Federal privacy law. We have also recently launched a project asking CIPL member companies with mature and resilient privacy management programs to map their privacy programs to CIPL's accountability framework. Our goal in launching this project is to further promote accountability as an essential prerequisite of the modern digital economy and build global consensus between industry and regulators on the meaning and importance of the concept of organizational accountability.

We are also continuing to engage with regulators around the globe on other privacy topics. We have organized two joint events with the Singapore Personal Data Protection Commission (PDPC) on Cross-Border Privacy Rules and AI, collaborated with the UK Information Commissioner's Office on their AI Auditing Framework, and gathered private and public sector stakeholders to discuss Brazil's new data protection law in Brasilia.

I encourage you to read the details of CIPL's ongoing work below, and I look forward to the next opportunity to see you all in person.

I. CIPL Roundtable on US Privacy Law - Why and How Organizational Accountability Should be Included in Federal Privacy Legislation in Washington, DC

On 12 July 2019, CIPL hosted an educational roundtable on including organizational accountability in Federal privacy legislation for US Senate staff working on privacy and consumer protection issues. During the roundtable, a panel of senior privacy executives and experts from US companies, including Mastercard, Qualcomm, LiveRamp and Accenture, shared their experiences in implementing accountable privacy compliance programs to date and how they would implement accountability under a new federal US privacy law for the benefit of consumers, regulators and wider society.

The roundtable began with a brief discussion on what accountability means in the context of privacy and data protection and how the Senate can draw on its existence in other parts of US regulation in crafting draft privacy legislation. Participants then explored why and how organizational accountability should be included in any new federal privacy law, and US Senate staff were afforded the opportunity to share their views, ask questions and seek clarification on all aspects of accountability.

III. CIPL/PDPC Roundtable on “Personal Data Protection Challenges and Solutions in AI” in the margins of the PDPC’s 2019 Personal Data Protection Seminar in Singapore

Following the joint industry session, CIPL and the PDPC held a joint roundtable on “Personal Data Protection Challenges and Solutions in AI” on 18 July 2019. The roundtable began with a discussion of the challenges raised by the data protection requirements of transparency and explainability in AI along with possible solutions. This was followed by explanations of the role of human intervention and review in AI in accordance with prohibitions or restrictions found in some data protection laws. The roundtable concluded with a discussion of how organizations can build, deliver, monitor, assess and improve AI frameworks for compliance with data protection principles and to properly manage relevant risks. Over four dozen representatives from Asian data protection authorities, industry and academia participated in the roundtable.

For more details on the roundtable, please see the agenda.

IV. CIPL/ICO Roundtable on the ICO’s AI Auditing Framework in London

On 18 September 2019, CIPL held a roundtable organized alongside the UK Information Commissioner’s Office (ICO) on the ICO’s AI Auditing Framework in London. This roundtable was organized not only in the context of the ICO’s recent consultation on an auditing framework for AI, but also CIPL’s project on “Delivering Sustainable AI Accountability in Practice”. During the roundtable, CIPL members and ICO representatives discussed the risks and challenges of using third-party developed and trained AI applications and algorithms, supplier due diligence, how organizations can use Data Protection Impact Assessments in AI projects and challenges around compliance with the principles of data minimization and purpose limitation.

For more details on the roundtable, please see the agenda and slide deck.

V. CIPL/Instituto Brasiliense de Direito Público (IDP) Joint Workshop on “The LGPD – Implementation and Harmonization with International Data Protection Regimes” in Brasilia

On 25 September 2019, CIPL and the Instituto Brasiliense de Direito Público (IDP) held the first of a series of workshops for its joint project on “Brazilian Data Protection Implementation and Effective Regulation.” This is an exclusive project that aims to contribute to the debates around the Brazilian Data Protection Law (Lei Geral de Proteção de Dados Pessoais (LGPD)), including the development of good practices for data governance and the implementation and enforcement of this new law. As part of this project, CIPL will organize additional multi-stakeholder workshops, webinars and training sessions, and prepare white papers on key topics relating to data protection in Brazil.

The first workshop, launching the project, gathered a variety of stakeholders including leading global and Brazilian companies, Brazilian and international policymakers, academics and civil society. Attendees had broad, intensive and pragmatic discussions concerning LGPD implementation and the establishment of a smart, efficient and technically skilled Brazilian Data Protection Authority. Conversations also touched on ensuring compatibility and interoperability between the LGPD and international data protection frameworks, as well as the need to ensure that economic and digital development in Brazil is complemented and supported by effective privacy protections for individuals.

The partnership between CIPL and IDP through this 14 month-long project combines global and local data protection perspectives, experience and expertise that that will drive benefits to both Brazilian and international participants and stakeholders in this project. CIPL invites privacy professionals, law firms, private organizations and public institutions to engage in the debates and take part in this project.

For more details on the workshop, please see the agenda and slide deck.

Participants discuss operationalizing accountability and compliance through comprehensive privacy management programs at CIPL and IDP’s joint workshop on the LGPD.

Message from the President

Bojana Bellamy

Dear CIPL Members,

Although the start of a new decade represents a new beginning for many, the unprecedented transformation we have seen in privacy and data protection towards the end of the last decade is set to continue for many years. Amidst the changes, CIPL is continuing to work hard to develop global solutions for privacy and the responsible use of data around the globe. One of our primary focus areas continues to be the promulgation of the importance of organizational accountability, and to that end we have gathered key stakeholders to discuss accountability both in Albania during the 41st International Conference of Data Protection & Privacy Commissioners (ICDPPC), and in the US in the context of the Federal Trade Commission's (FTC) recent consent decrees, which formed the basis of a CIPL white paper entitled "Organizational Accountability in Light of FTC Consent Orders". As part of our commitment to engaging in global legislative efforts in privacy, CIPL has held a workshop with key stakeholders in New Delhi on India's Proposed Personal Data Protection Law. We are also continuing to work on accountable AI, and held a design jam on AI explainability in December during the 52nd Asia-Pacific Privacy Authorities (APPA) Forum in the Philippines.

I encourage you to read the details of CIPL's ongoing work below, and I hope to see many of you at our upcoming events.

I. CIPL/Google Joint Breakfast Meeting on "Advancing Compliance and Promoting Privacy through Constructive Engagement between Regulators and Industry" in Tirana

On 24 October 2019, CIPL hosted an exclusive breakfast discussion with Google in the margins of the 41st International Conference of Data Protection and Privacy Commissioners (ICDPPC). This meeting brought together a small group of regulators and industry thought leaders to engage in an interactive dialogue on the benefits of constructive engagement between regulators and industry.

Representatives from CIPL member companies and data protection authorities discuss the benefits of constructive engagement between regulators and industry.

II. CIPL/IAF/OECD Side Events on Accountability at the 41st International Conference of Data Protection & Privacy Commissioners (ICDPPC) in Tirana

On 24 October 2019, CIPL held two side events during the 41st ICDPPC with the Information Accountability Foundation (IAF) and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD). The first session, entitled “What is Accountability? Addressing the Confusion, Finding Consensus”, focused on clarifying the meaning of organizational accountability. Organizational accountability has become a key building block of data protection globally through legislation, regulatory guidance, global standards and privacy management programs. If properly understood and implemented, it has enormous potential for maximizing both privacy protections for individuals and the effective and beneficial use of personal data. Yet, as noted in a recent OECD-CIPL workshop, the concept of accountability is still being questioned as lacking a commonly agreed meaning, as well as generally accepted ways of measurement, effective enforcement, scalability and auditability. This session sought to address these concerns in order to reinforce the relevance of accountability in the digital era. It also explored ways to increase and incentivize the uptake of organizational accountability by organizations.

Hunton Andrews Kurth Partner Lisa Sotto speaks on the relevance of approaches to accountability in other areas of US law to data protection and privacy.

This first session formed the foundation for the subsequent session on “Accountability 2.0 - Data Stewardship and Beneficial AI”, which focused on updated guidance, new legal frameworks, and corporate implementation of stakeholder focused data stewardship, specifically in the context of advanced analytics and artificial intelligence.

For more details on the ICDPPC side events, please see the agendas for both the first and second session.

III. CIPL Roundtable on Accountability in Light of FTC Consent Orders in Washington, DC

Traditionally, the FTC has spelled out many of accountability’s key features through its past consent orders. Following the FTC’s recent record settlement with Facebook, CIPL organized a roundtable in Washington, DC to brainstorm with senior privacy leaders from CIPL member organizations on how the recent FTC consent decree may change the expectations of regulators, the shape of accountability and privacy management programs, both within an organization and across the ecosystem.

During the Roundtable, CIPL member Facebook presented on the impact of the FTC’s consent order on Facebook and its partners. The roundtable then transitioned to an open discussion among all participants on the global impact of the FTC’s recent settlement with Facebook and what this means for organizations’ internal privacy management programs and business-to-business relationships. Other key discussion topics included the relevance of FTC consent orders to organizational accountability more generally and whether the obligations laid out in the Facebook settlement are instructive for SMEs and other industries. Participants also explored the relevance of this consent order to a potential accountability requirement in a future US federal privacy law. This roundtable informed CIPL’s recent white paper on “Organizational Accountability in Light of FTC Consent Orders”.

IV. CIPL/Trilegal Joint Global Dialogue on Best Practices in Implementing India's Proposed Personal Data Protection Law in the Context of the Data Driven Economy in New Delhi

On 14 November 2019, CIPL held a joint workshop with Trilegal on India's proposed data protection law. Over 70 representatives from CIPL member companies, regulators and local Indian organizations participated in this workshop.

The all-day event consisted of four main sessions. Following opening remarks by CIPL's Bojana Bellamy and Trilegal Partner Rahul Matthan, the event commenced with a keynote on the promises of India's data protection law. The first session focused on the various DPA tasks under the new privacy law and how to best implement them in light of globally recognized characteristics and experiences of established international data protection authorities. The second session explored how key elements of this law will interact with the demands of the modern digital economy, including AI and machine learning, the Internet of Things, blockchain and other emerging technologies. The third session shifted to a discussion around enabling cross-border data flows. The final session of the event focused on India's Digital Empowerment and Protection Architecture (DEPA) and similar frameworks from across the world.

For more details on the workshop, please see the agenda and slide deck.

V. CIPL/TTC Labs Joint Design Jam on AI Explainability in the margins of the 52nd APPA Forum in Cebu

In connection with its broader project on the data protection implications of artificial intelligence (AI) and machine learning, CIPL has been organizing a series of events and workshops to bring together industry, policymakers, regulators, academics and civil society to discuss accountable solutions and best practices to address the challenges that AI technology presents to data protection.

As part of this series, CIPL held a fast-paced, output-oriented workshop called a Design Jam focused on AI Explainability with TTC Labs, a cross-industry effort initiated by Facebook that focuses on research, thought leadership and prototype design patterns related to improving user experiences for privacy and data. This event was held in Cebu, Philippines on 3 December 2019 around the 52nd Asia-Pacific Privacy Authorities (APPA) Forum. During the Design Jam, multidisciplinary experts shared ideas and prototypes that aim to facilitate AI explainability through providing transparency and controls to people around algorithmically-driven services. This event built on TTC Labs' first Design Jam on the subject of AI explainability for startups in May 2019 in Singapore.

Hong Kong Privacy Commissioner Stephen Wong speaks on the meaning and importance of AI explainability.

For more details on the workshop, please see the agenda.
